Responding to the report, Kedar Desai, a spokesperson for AOL, alleged that "the report has been leaked to the media once again even as we were getting hold of our copy".

"This was expected of them as their malafide intentions to malign us has been evident since the beginning... We have been victims of a conspiracy. And we will fight for the truth to come out," Desai said in a statement.

Desai said that AOL's legal team would study the report and decide on the future course of action.

In 2016, the NGT allowed AOL to hold a three-day 'World Culture Festival' on the floodplains while expressing its helplessness in banning the event, citing "fait accompli". It had initially imposed a Rs 5-crore interim compensation on AOL for the environmental damage believed to have been caused by the event.

before the NGT, Manoj Misra, from Yamuna Jiye Abhiyaan, said he was "glad that this long awaited report has been made public".

"The process of restoration and rehabilitation of the floodplains needs to start at the earliest since it recharges groundwater during the monsoon months. This was not possible last year," he said.

The report stated that the "physical and biological components of ecological rehabilitation of the site would cost Rs 42.02 lakh plus expenditure on the monitoring by a team of experts for 10 years plus cost of transportation of material outside the floodplain".

Earlier, a separate four-member committee set up by the NGT on the issue had recommended that the AOL Foundation pay Rs 100-120 crore as restoration cost for "extensive and severe damage" to the floodplains.
